At 12 M. the order of the day was postponed for fifteen minutes, to hear a colored licentiate, Rev. W. L. Smith, of hard-carned victories in the election of 1883-84-85, and surrender unconditionally to the tender mercy of its political adversaries? What this may be can be inferred from what it has been in our past experience in the legislation of the State. To allow any such result to be accomplished would violate the memories of the past, antagonize the best interests of the present, and destroy the highest hopes of our future domestic security. If any dissatisfaction has been created by dissansions among ourselves, let it be interested as general entered as postponed for fifteen minutes, to hear a colored licentiate, Rev. W. L.
